It is a mistake that Collector Collier, of San Francisco has a large amount charged against him at the Treasury Department, unaccounted for; or that any person has been sent to California to examine into the matter From the unpreceivated position of affairs whilst he was there, and the large amount collected and disbursed in some instances with no other authority than the absolute necessities of the public service, his accounts require time for examination and explanation. Some of his ac counts show an excess. There is not the slightest ground for supposing that his accounts will not be all satisfacto-

The charges against Gen. Talcot, are for disrespect' disobedience, and conduct unbecoming an officer and gentleman. It appears that Mills, the Statuary, has discovered a new plan for furnaces, by which a great saving in fuel is effected; in consequence he applied for the contract for supplying cannon for the army. Talcot did not give Mills the centract, and he then applied to the Secretary. The Secretary called upon Talcot for copies of the proposals. At first it was denied that any contract had been entertained, but upon the Secretary pressing the matter. Talcot refused to produce the proposals, denying the Secretary's right to interfere with the duties of the Ordname Bureau.—The Secretary having in his possession proof that a contract had been made by Talcot with the Treadagar works, at Richmond, Va. after Mills had made proposals, and at a much higher rate than Mills had offered to do the vork for has demanded an investigation.

Those who know Gen Wood, think he will not consent to sit as Gen. Twiggs junior, especially as it would bar his right to command the army, in case of Gen. Scott's death or resignation.

Six other sections are yet required to make it complete—three of which are now in course of construction at the pard. The whole will probably be finished about the lat of next September, when it is expected that it will be capable of sustaining the largest years local floats on the Mississippi. It will be nearly on the plan of the first of the largest dock in the country with the exception of that at New York. Two steam engines are already prepared to be placed upon the dock when completed—N. O. Pic. June 8th.

Last night between two and three thousand persons seembled at Castle Garden to witness the representation of "Lucia di Lammermoor." The floor appeared like a gay parterre of fashion and beauty; and the gallery fringed the whole scene with native and exotic flowers of loveliness and beauty, that made the scene at once charming and delightful. When the music of the grand orchestra broke in upon the whispers, gossip, and movements of the throng, every breeze scemed lulled to rest, and all, except the music, was noiseless. The solo on the clarionet during the overture, however, brought down the first storm of applause, and from that moment all was enthusia m and excitement. At the end of the acts, the principal performers were called before the curtain, and at the end of the second act the whole audience rose as with one will, amidst loud cheering and the waving of handkerchiefs, to receive those who had so handsomely triumphed in their art. Bettini's noble voice captivated every ear, and Bosio sang with an earnest truthfulness, and with more than her usual fervor. Beneventano, also, with a single exception, per-

Commemorative Celebration in Trinity Church.

Yesterday, a grand celebration took place in Trinity Church, in this city, in commemoration of the third ju-bilee of the Society fer the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts. It was on the 16th of June, 1701, that King William the Third of England, granted a charter of incorporation to an association called the "Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts," being one of the first societies formed after the Protestant Reformation. This charter was granted to the society in perpetual succession, and the powers which it conferred were for the purpose of extending the Protestant Epicopal Church, and for the dissemination of Protestant principles throughout the world. Some time ago, the Archbishop of Canterbury gave orders that the hundred and fiftieth anniversary of the granting of the charter to the society, should be celebrated as a jubilee by the Church of England over the world. It was in accordance with this proclamation that the standing committee of the Episcopal Church in this diocess had made arrange ments for a commemorative celebration in this city. The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel has done The Society for the Propagation of the Gospel has done much to establish and support the Episcopal church in this city and State; and to that institution Columbi College owes the foundation of its extensive library. consisting at present of 10 900 v clumes, and also for very liberal pecuniary contributions to the college funds during its less flourishing condition. In 1864, the numbers who used the litungy of the Church of England as a form of worship, having considerably increased, a royal grant was given by William and Mary of England to a quantity of land for building a church to be called Trinity church. In the year 1705, an additional grant was made, which extended from a line, now Vessy street, along the margin of the river up to what is now Christopher street. This tract of land was called the Queen's Favor, and was given to the Trinity Church Corporation. But these lands were then in an uncultivated state, and comparatively unproductive consequently contributing but little, for several years subsequent to the support of the infant church in this city, and it is probable that the Episcopal Church property would have failed to afford the nacessary means of support which the lacreasing extension di manded. But the Society for the Prospation of the Gospel acted the part of a faltiful guardian taking the new church in hand, and yielding liberally to its maintenance by pecuniary aid; supplying it with clergy, schoolmasters, books, and every other necessary sessential to its respectability and weifare. This watchfuluess and support were continued with a bountiful hand for soveral years, until the revenues arising from the church property augmented sufficiently to render the church property augmented sufficiently to render the church property augmented sufficiently to render the church property and when it is considered how much that society on the left of June 1701, that the anniversary took place yeared by a detachment from the bediene seminary, at Chelsea; the faculty trustees and clergy, assembled at the Go much to establish and support the Episcopal church in this city and State; and to that institution Columbi

A collection was taken up, which amounted to a very considerable sum and which is to be appropriated in sid of the missions in this dicees.

Police Intelligence.

Among the prisoners brought before the magistrate on Sunday morning at the returns made from the various wards, a curious looking little Irishman, by the name of John Walsh, was brought up for judgment, on a charge made by the Fourth ward police, that the prisoner was conveyed to the station bow John Walsh, was brought up for judgment, on a charge made by the Fourth ward police, that the prisoner was conveyed to the station house on Saturday night, in a state of gress intoxication. The prisoner endeavored to explain the matter, and begged to be let off, stating that he would explain to the court how it was he cams to get a little drop more than ordinary. He stated that its wife, on Saturday, had a baby, and that baby was a bey; and as that was his first buy he felt so delighted he went out and treated some of his friends, and drank a little too much himself, and that was the way he came into the station home. "But," said the prisoner, "if you will only let me go home temy family, Judge, faith and I will name my boy after the Alderman of the ward." Magistrate, (laughingly)—Well, Walsh, if that is the case, and you wish to honor Alderman Oakley, by naming the boy after him. I will let you go on that condition. (Laughter).

Prisoner.—Faith and I will name the boy Jacob B. Oakley Walsh, and no mistake. (Laughter.)

Magistrate—Then, Walsh, you can go; but be careful in future, and not drink any more liquor until your wife has another boy. (Laughter.) more liquor until your wife has another boy. (Laughter.)

A general laugh was here created, and away went the prisoner out of court, with a light heart to his young son, who is to be named after yourself."

To The Entroy of the Hellald.

Sir—An article appeared in your paper posterilay, over the signature of Alfred Carson, Chief Engineer, which demands a prompt reply at my hards. I am there charged with a remark to the Chief Engineer, intended, as he insists, to reflect upon the firemen of this city, Mr. carson well knows, and knew at the time when he affixed his signature to the obnexious article, that his imputation was altogether unfounded. I can not accustomed to boast of my particular regard for this or that body of men but in days well remembered by the great body of men but in days will remembered by the great body of this valuable and highly respectable class of my fellow citizens, it, days when they were struggling for that privilege which has placed Mr. Carson in the position he now occupies, my acts have shown my appreciation of their worth and my regard for their rights. The history of my interview with Mr. Carson, is this—I feit a deep interest in the credition of a mw building for courf rooms and pubble effects. I was perfectly indifferent on which end of the cit Alima House the me building was located. I simply desired that it should be built somewhere.
